We are thankful to General Keifer for a copy of his oration at the unveiling of the statue of James A. Garfield. We have read it with pleasure and admiration. It was a splendid tribute to the memory of a grand man. No friend of Garfield could wish that such a tribute to his memory be left unspoken, and we cannot see how anyone could hear it and realize that he had wished to had it unsaid, without feeling a sense of shame.

Are boards of trade merely local institutions with a high-sounding name, formed and manipulated chiefly for ornamental and advertising uses, or may they be made to serve substantial and serviceable purposes: This is a question of some importance, locally, just now. We do not desire a board of trade simply because other cities have organizations of the sort, but if a board of trade, a chamber of commerce, or any permanent local institution which may represent the commercial and industrial interests of the city, can be made useful in promoting the growth and prosperity of the city. then that is precisely the kind of an institotion which should be organized, and worked, and maintained in this city. Nobody wishes to put either time, money or muscle into an enterprise which promises only to feed local pride with wind and does nothing to build a secure foundation for

No better means of solving the problem avolved could be asked for than evidence as to what has been done through boards of trade in other cities, and as we have evidence of this sort from Leavenworth, Kansas, contained in the fourth Annual Report of its Board of Trade, we take pleasure in presenting it to our readers. This organi-Sec. Treas. Zation was formed in June, 1882, and Mr. H. Miles Moore, the secretary, says that it thas been an agency of good in all the important affairs" of Leavenworth, and that through its influence various enterprises have been secured."

What has been done during the past year, and how it has been done, may be learned from the following paragraph of the report New railroads, manufactories, wholesale houses and capitalists have located in our city during the past year, while the prospect is most encouraging for the year to come, and the result already attained is due in a large degree, we I fleve, to the united efforts and the information sent out under the anspices of the board during the past year. We have gathered the statistics of business, manufacturing, railroad interests, coal mining, grain shipments, improvements, and all information pertaining to our resources and advantages for manufac-turing and commerce, for publication in pamphlet form for gratuitous distribution. We must use our best efforts to advance the ablic welfare by disseminating information regarding the various interests of our city, inviting the entire world to a knowledge of our superior advantages, thus in-ducing the capitalist and the manufacturer to come and dwell among and share our nefits, and thereby adding millions to the material wealth and prosperity of our city.

We append a little more of the same sort. which should have a potent effect in stirring up our local public spirit to put itself into an organic form:

THE MAYOR OF NEW YORK.

The Number and Length of Mayor Hewitt's Letters-How He Manages. Mayor Hewitt has a thin, stooping figure, and when he gets to the mayor's of-fice, at about II a. m., muffled in wraps, and escorted by a stout policeman, he looks much like an invalid. But his in-tellect is robust. He hears all who call thinkers. He has a good many ideas about administering the laws, but has not ward them to the proper departments.

The mayor has astonished many persons by the number and length of his let ters, which have been most remarkable taking into consideration his known illhealth. Not counting his private letters, which are considerable, his missives to heads of departments, to the governor, the legislature and to various public bodies which have invited him to dine.

How does he do" The only way he could perform such an amount of labor is by the use of stenographers and typowriters, and, happily for him, Mayor Hewitt thoroughly under-stands how to use these great time savers. By long practice and the habit of offband talking and clear thinking, the mayo talks off a letter in a few minutes that would require an hour of his time if he were to write it. At the same time he

But, short or long, the mayor's letters are the feature of his administration. He likes to get everything down in black and white. The mayor's mail is enormous.
